Patricia Heller

Author's Bio

In her forties and fifties Patricia Heller briefly studied writing at Yale and voice at Julliard. She feels her most valuable education began though when she was forced by an incurable illness into studying psychic, energy and spiritual healing. Heller, now gloriously healthy, lives her passion and purpose helping everyone she meets the way she's helped herself - opening their hearts and minds to resources considered by many to be mystical and magical.

While Heller still has a home in New Mexico, the Land of Enchantment, she spends most of her time in New York, the Land of Reality. Her second book, Rise From Generation Free, a novel based upon the effect secrecy surrounding the murder of her grandfather had on future generations, will be out as soon as she writes it. Another book currently in progress, The Procrastinator's Guide to Writing a Book, may be out first
